WORK IS RELIGIOUS

Dr. Samuel H. Woodrow Preaches on "How to Dignify Drudgery."

From the text, "And whatever ye do, do it heartily, as unto the Lord and not unto men," the Rev. Samuel H. Woodrow, pastor of the First Congregational Church, preached this morning on the subject, "How to Dig-

"The apostle is here speaking to servants concerning those tasks that servants are called upon to perform," said Dr. Woodrow. "He is not speaking about what we call religious work, such as preaching, teaching, or visiting the sick. He is speaking about the work in which men are engaged in order to earn their daily bread. He is speaking to the world's drudges about their drudgery. One's faily task, if performed in a Christlike spirit, is truly religious. There is a large amount of drudgery in every trade or profession. The lowly every trade or profession. The lowly task, the task that requires great effort, the wearisome routine of life, makes drudges of us all.

"No one is exempt. The farmer, the miner, the mechanic are no more drudges than the merchant, the doctor or the preacher. Each finds some disagreeable or inconsequential task or some wearisome routine.

"How shall we dignify our drudgery? By thinking of the good accomplished. Cooking food and washing clothes are drudgery, but the health and happiness, to say nothing of the morals and religion of the community, are dependant upon these tasks. There is an ethical value in clean clothes and a spiritual value in well cooked food.

"We dignify our daily tasks by doing them unto the Lord.' The humblest task may glow with a heavenly light when performed with a divine motive."

CLERKS MAY QUIT AN HOUR EARLIER

To begin work an hour earlier and quit an hour earlier is the latest plan

Edward E. Hayden, of the Naval Observatory, who suggested to his department chief that 8 o'clock be named as the hour for the morning whistle to blow with quitting time fixed at 3:30.

This would give the employes an additional hour of daylight after they had finished up the work of the day and it is believed it would be very popular with them. Assistant Secretary Winthrop is taking the matter under consideration and may adopt the plan.
